

Don't snap at me, Mr Crocodile!

Movement activity: a game for two teams.

You will need:

Open space with floor you can mark

Chalk

Small bean bags (one per child)

Draw two rows of stepping stones on the ground in chalk. Ask the children to stand at one end, and put two equal piles of bean bags at the other.

Tell the children that they are two teams of monkeys, on one side of the waterhole. The bean bags are juicy mangoes, on the other side. But the fruit is very heavy and they are only small monkeys, so they can just carry one piece on each crossing. Only one monkey can cross the waterhole at a time. If there is more than one monkey on the stepping stones, Crocodile will spot them and snap them!

They need to cross the watering hole one at a time and collect a piece of fruit to bring back to their team. The first group to bring back all their bean bags to their team is the winner.
